Cooperating beyond borders to make cities and regions better places to live and work

Building on the rich experience of 124 co-financed projects since 2007, the Interreg CENTRAL EUROPE Programme will in 2015 dedicate funds of up to 80 million Euros to transnational projects. They will be working on innovation, low carbon solutions, natural and cultural resources as well as transport. A first call for proposals is expected to open in February following the official approval of the programme.

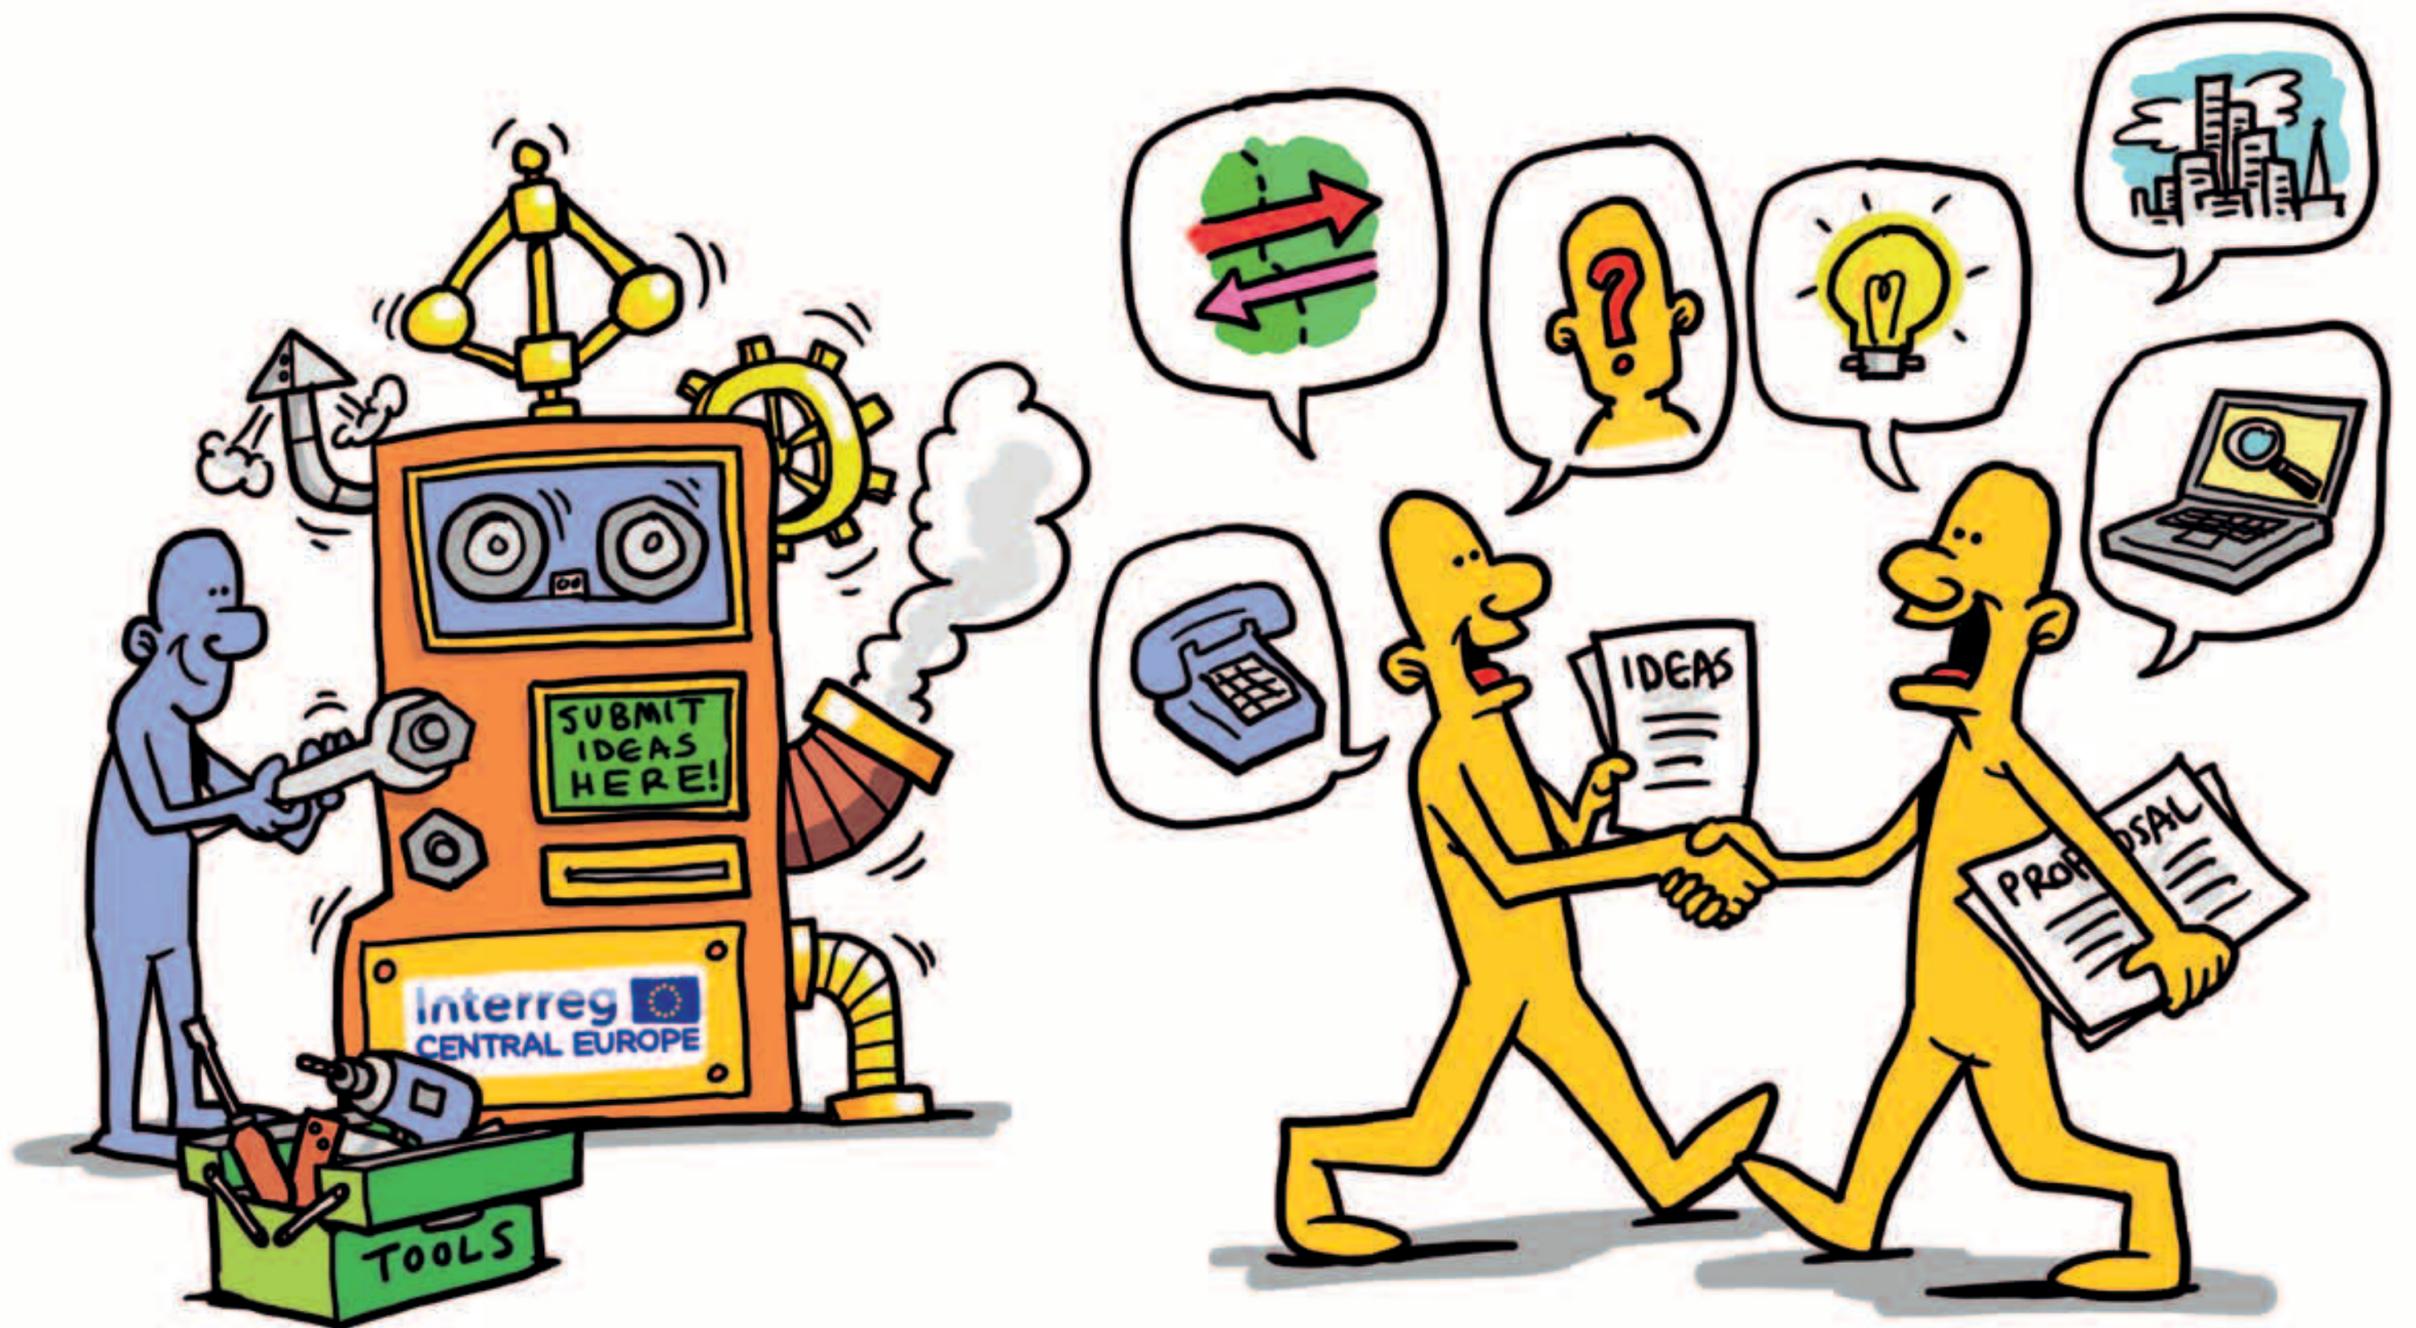

Interreg CENTRAL EUROPE is a European Union cohesion policy programme managed by the City of Vienna and supports transnational cooperation between cities and regions of nine countries: Austria, Croatia, the Czech Republic, Germany, Hungary, Italy, Poland, Slovakia, and Slovenia. Until 2020 around 231 million Euros from the European Regional Development Fund will be dedicated to projects to build urban and regional capacities and to help implementing smart solutions in view of regional challenges.

This wall calendar guides you through an important year for both the programme and applicants. In 12 steps it illustrates the path towards transnational cooperation supported by the programme. However, please take the underlying timeline with some caution, as the opening of the call was still indicative at time of printing. Before launching the first call for proposals in February 2015 the programme will have to be approved by the European Commission - and once the call is open, the actual time needed for assessing application forms will depend on the number of applications received.

We hope that this calendar and other support we offer will inspire you to work with us and wish you

All the best for 2015!

Shortly before launching the first call for proposals, the programme is busy fine-tuning the “machine” while applicants are already discussing their ideas for transnational cooperation and searching for partners. Project ideas and partners can be researched on www.central2020.eu in the CENTRAL EUROPE project idea database.

If all goes according to plan, the light applications will soon be assessed by the programme regarding their relevance, partnership and budget. For applicants it is time to discuss how to proceed if they get invited to the second step. Check the updated timeline for the call on www.central2020.eu.

While the evaluation of the light applications is ongoing, applicants will need some patience before being informed whether they will be invited to submit a full application form. In the meantime they could get prepared for the second application step by looking at www.central2013.eu/studies. The thematic studies provide insights into how transnational projects contribute to building regional capacities.

The second step of the call will open for the best project proposals so far. Full application forms will have to be elaborated on innovation, low carbon solutions, natural and cultural resources as well as transport. The less successful applicants will have to rethink their idea and can eventually apply in the next call. Check www.central2020.eu for more news and ongoing activities.

The programme will help applicants to apply through dedicated training and tools. This second step of the application process is still competitive and applicants will need an eye for detail to get all information right and to be funded. Check www.central2020.eu for more information on tools and capacity building measures offered.

Writing a good application for the Interreg CENTRAL EUROPE Programme is team work from the beginning but even more so just weeks before the submission. In addition to trainings, the programme will also offer individual consultations. For more information on how and when to schedule a consultation visit www.central2020.eu for more information.
